Giving Back

Each woman in the Chrome Divas Southeast Nebraska Chapter has her own story. Many have domestic violence in their past. A couple have stayed at Friendship Home or other domestic violence shelters in Nebraska. All of them are dedicated to making sure other women and children have a safe place.

Chrome Divas Southeast Nebraska Chapter

Their meeting starts with an agenda filled with items concerning Friendship Home. The Chrome Divas chose one charity to focus on in 2011 and Friendship Home was blessed to be it. A Poker Run. Adopt-A-Room. Stuff the Bus. Garage Sale. Safe Quarters. Tee Shirt Quilt. Their list of projects goes on and on. An entire year committed to the well being of families in shelter.

And the Chrome Divas aren't alone.

Laura* and her children are living in one of Friendship Home's transitional housing units. They, along with other Friendship Home residents, walked door to door October 2 collecting donations during Safe Quarters. She shared that her and her children "have never been turned away from the shelter in our greatest time of need and danger. We are so greatly appreciative and I can't wait to show my thanks and be able to give back!"

"We have never been turned away from the shelter in our greatest time of need and danger. We are so greatly appreciative and I can't wait to show my thanks and be able to give back!"

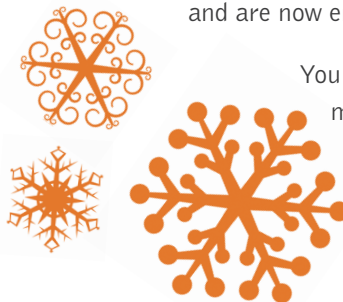

Another survivor who formed a Safe Quarters team told us, "Thank you for doing this. It makes survivors feel empowered to walk door to door for a cause that affects them personally, I know it does me. Every little bit of empowerment helps give women like me another reason to smile and go on."

Michelle and Chris

Women who have stayed at Friendship Home or other shelters find so many ways to give back. They walk in Safe Quarters and throw fundraisers. They speak to groups and volunteer their time. They encourage their employers to give and make personal contributions. They have been there and are now empowered to make a difference for others.

You are right there with them. Every donation you make, every time you volunteer, you empower women to give back.

Stories That Changed Us

Jennie Lee

by Judy Gergen and Theresa Coleman

What I remember most about my mother, Jennie, was her courage, strength, and her will to live which sustained her through many years of neglect and abuse which began on the day she was born.

Jennie left her abusive home around age sixteen, and hitched a ride to Denver, hoping to find a better life by following her older sister there. She married and soon had three children of her own. Robert was an alcoholic trying to escape his own pain. They fought constantly when they were together. In the days following the Depression, they did interesting things to get money.

They bought cases of Oleo margarine, mixed it with buttermilk, and sold it as butter in bars, for fifty cents a pound.

We spent much of our family time in the car, traveling to various cities, sleeping in cheap hotels, and I also remember sleeping in a laundry mat. Sometimes when Mom and Dad were arguing, he would stop the car, push us all out, and leave us stranded in a strange city with no place to go and no money. I remember being dumped in Chicago in the middle of the night. It was winter, and we didn't even have our shoes or coats on. My mom found a place for us until Dad returned, several days later.

One time in Omaha, mother took us down to the police station and asked for them to give us a cell to get us out of the cold for a night. They refused her, so she promptly went outside and threw a brick through their window to make them reconsider, but they did not. I don't know where we slept that night.

One night in a motel room in Oakland, CA my father was sitting quietly in a rocker. I recall sitting with my mother while my brothers were in bed. Dad suddenly stood up, pulled his pockets inside out, spilling all of the change onto the floor, and went into the bathroom, locking the door. After a few minutes, Mom began knocking on the door and screaming for him to open it. She got louder and louder until he emerged, covered in blood. He had slit his wrists. My mother called the ambulance. I vividly remember kneeling beside my mother wiping Dad's blood from the bathroom floor. In spite of all of this, she remained strong and determined to do everything she could to try to hold her broken family together.

Partners in Friendship

With the year coming to a close, we are looking back at 2011 and giving thanks for all of the groups and individuals who gave in so many ways to the women and children at Friendship Home. Here is a look at the past few months:

The women at Alpha Chi Omega held two fundraisers for Friendship Home this fall. Their annual Chips-N-Dip fundraiser and the UNL Greek Community Dance. Their involvement doesn't stop with fundraising. Many of the women from this sorority volunteer as Children's Advocates at our shelters and collect funds through our Safe Quarters drive.

Another sorority from UNL, Sigma Psi Zeta, helps out Friendship Home in many ways. Their members fundraise during Safe Quarters, sell purple bracelets to benefit Friendship Home, and volunteer their time and skills to help women and children.

Hope Reformed Church has been passing their 'Cup of Hope' at their church all year long. Funds collected benefit families at Friendship Home. The coupon site, Zingtown! benefitted Friendship Home with a percentage of sales in November.

Mom to her first job at a downtown clothes cleaner. This was the beginning of the end of my mother's dependence on her husband.

While discussing the many times that Dad dumped us on the street, and how she managed to take care of us, my mom had a moment of realization. "Well," she said, "I guess God was looking out for us."

In the ten years that they were married, I can't recall seeing any expression of love between my parents. During most of those years, my father was "on the road", leaving mom to try to care for us alone.

After my mom broke away from my dad, she worked hard to take care of us. He would turn up from time to time, but she refused to take him back. Her loneliness often carried her to the bars. My brothers and I grew up learning to fend for ourselves, but we always had an unbreakable bond with each other and our mother, who was the glue that kept us together. We had to move often when she fell behind on the rent, but stayed in the downtown Omaha area, until we were blessed with a wonderful stepdad who adored my mom and provided the stability that we so desperately needed.

I can't help but wonder how we may have been spared some misery if my mother could have turned to a Friendship Home to help her break the "cycle of abuse."

The last place I recall my dad dumping us was near 23rd and Saint Mary's, in Omaha in front of Neil's Bar, next to Plotkin's Grocery where they bought the Oleo. Marilyn, a kind stranger who was sitting at the front window of the bar, saw him push us out. She took us in and got us an apartment in a building that she managed. She became a good friend to my mother. That friendship led Judy Gergen, the daughter of Jennie Tesch is an interior designer and the owner of Inspirational Interiors.

Theresa Coleman is a leader in the Celebrate Recovery 12- step program at Lincoln Berean Church.

Theresa and Judy share a desire to encourage victims of abuse to break free from the devastating cycle.

Women from Pleasant Dale American Legion Auxiliary #354 collected food items for women and children staying at Friendship Home, as did women from P.E.O. chapter GV. Two local retail stores donated items to Friendship Home during their annual drives. Footloose and Fancy donated shoes and wool socks and Dillard's donated purses and watches.

Cheever Construction helped out the shelter with their Cheever Cares program. They fixed stairs at one shelter, making them safe and sound for residents.

Finally, a heartfelt thank you to Amy Schlichting from Verizon. Amy clocked over 50 hours of volunteer work for Friendship Home over the past three months. Verizon matched her hours with a financial donation through their volunteer incentive program.
